Wendy Westlake
Demonstrates ^{Her} Signature
Approach to Alcohol Inks
March 9

This unique paint does most of the work all by itself. Alcohol inks make amazing designs and puddles of color when applied to Yupo paper. Wendy creates the ink designs and then embellishes with permanent marker pens. She says, “It’s like a Zentangle that you make yourself from start to finish.”

Wendy is an award winning watercolor artist and past president of the MN Watercolor Society. She lives in Zumbrota, MN and recently opened a gallery in Rochester MN. “My goal as an artist is to capture the elusive. I respond to what I see in the natural world by putting paint to paper or canvas. Colors and their relationships, the play of shapes, the mixing of paint textures and thicknesses are all parts of the sum. When I succeed, I feel joy.”

From the President

Hello Artist Friends And Members!

During these winter months, I've been experimenting with mixing shades of grey to capture our stark winter landscape. And it is fun to move around my palette to find unexpected color combinations for snow. And yet at this time of year, I'm a little tired of seeing grey. If you are too, then mark your calendar for our March 9 meeting. Our past president Wendy Westlake will bring us some beautiful blooming color using alcohol inks on Yupo. During Wendy's demonstration, she will show us how she transforms puddles of organic shapes and color into fabulous florals.

In the meantime, it is time to show us what you've been working on. Be sure to complete your submission for our upcoming Spring Show now. The entry deadline is March 5. More information is available in this edition of our newsletter and on our website minnesotawatercolors.com.

For those of you who want to kickstart your creative energy, sign up for Kathleen Conover's upcoming workshop "Chaos to Order." This workshop is for artists with a sense of adventure and desire to bring their individual expression to the next level. You can view an introduction to Kathleen's process on her website at KathleenConover.com.

Our Board is brimming with an influx of creative energy too. Please join me in welcoming these new volunteers.

- Kathy Schur has joined Clare Ritter as co-chair of our wonderful workshops
- Joel Kaplan has stepped up to co-chair our monthly programs along side Tara Sweeney
- Kelly Kastner has come forward to manage PR and to help you stay informed about all things MNWS
- Hadji Benfield has volunteered to take over as our membership chair

We are most grateful for the commitment and support of these individuals. Our organization is enlivened through the contributions of so many talented individuals. Please reach out to any of our Board members if you'd like to get more involved with MNWS.

Think Spring,
Sonja

Watercolor Reflections

By Vera Kovacovic

This issue I will introduce you to an exceptional artist, who is respected and honored nationally and internationally - Carla O'Connor. Carla is mostly a figurative painter, but is also inspired by the sights and colors of the Pacific Northwest Puget Sound to create abstract landscapes. The text below is from an interview with The Wandering Educators (wanderingeducators.com) organization.

"...In her watercolor paintings, Carla achieves a quiet complexity through the well balanced juxtaposition of light and dark, of bright and muted colors. Busy areas shifting into quiet zones take the eyes on an adventurous journey. There is a lot of movement in Carla's paintings, splashing drops, spheres and other shapes travel over geometrical color fields in the background, enhancing the beauty of the central human figures in Carla's dreamlike compositions.

Where and how are you inspired?

The human form has always been my deepest inspiration. However, upon moving to the Pacific NW, I fell in love with the rocky shore of Puget Sound. I seasawed between figure work and abstract landscapes until I realized I was fragmented and both subjects were suffering. Settling on the landscapes led to a series called "Rock Rhythms" and gave me national recognition, inclusion in books of others, and numerous magazine articles. At the conclusion of the series, I was able to return to figurative work all the better. A recent local exhibit exploring the tradition and history of wearing masks in all cultures and through the centuries was the inspiration for a large body of work. But usually, I have found that the best inspiration comes from getting in the studio daily and just plain working – and working hard!

What materials do you prefer?

Since I was classically trained in oils, it was a smooth transition to acrylics on canvas and then to watercolor on paper. I have always been a two dimensional artist and it was usually someone's work that I admired that led to each change of medium. I added Gouache to my works on paper in order to give variance to the surface and more subtlety to colors..."

Patt Nelson's "Country Thyme Garden" Barn Studio

Delighted to be living her country dream on a small environmental lake in Spicer, Minnesota, Patt Nelson enjoys her artistic expression with flower gardens and watercolor painting.

After the sudden death of her husband and her diagnosis with cancer, she discovered that God and watercolor painting brought her through the long tough recovery. She is a self-taught and self-motivated watercolorist. "I enjoy working in the barn, where my Grandpa had milking cows, because my mind is free of distractions. I work toward an impressionistic portrayal in my work, leaning toward abstract. I want to maintain art that leaves room for the viewer's imagination and interpretation of the details so as to enhance their enjoyment."

Patt sponsors artistic friends and a variety of professional artists to teach in her barn studio and garden. She also began a local art club called, W.W. (Watercolor WannaBees) for beginners in watercolor and home schoolers who meet in the barn once a week. She has another art club of 30 members and a garden club that enjoy meeting at her studio barn and beautiful country garden, as well. You can visit her web page, "Country Thyme Garden" at www.outdoorgardenwedding.com/shop.html.

Other artists find Patt's country setting a place of inspiration for plein air painting.

WATERMEDIA WORKSHOP with KATHLEEN CONOVER

"Chaos to Order"

May 31 - June 3, 2017

Wednesday - Saturday 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.
Artistry, 1800 Old Shakopee Rd, Bloomington, MN

Experience level: beginner to advanced

COURSE CONTENT: Starting a painting with color, texture, gestural marks and layers may seem like "chaos," but it delivers vital energy that is not only fun and intuitive but necessary. Great design and composition are the elements that bring "order" to a rich start and turn it into an attention-getting and expressive finished painting. Beginner or advanced, you are encouraged to discover and explore your unique expression and personal imagery in realism, abstraction or non-objective. Demonstrations, an 8 page syllabus plus handouts, individual attention and independent work time will enable understanding and application of new information and processes. Specific lessons on texture building, color concepts, layering, how to do a value study, understanding design principles and elements, and more will be presented. "Most of all," Kathleen says, "I want to help each artist advance to the next level in their work - no matter where they start." Bring your sense of adventure and enthusiasm for this high energy, fully packed workshop. An introduction to Kathleen's teaching is included in a three part video in "Workshops" on her web site: KathleenConover.com.

Kathleen Conover divides her time among painting, teaching, judging and gallery ownership (20 years). She holds signature status in several international and national organizations. Kathleen has garnered numerous awards and her work is included in many books. Most recently she is honored to have invitations to several International Watercolor Society exhibitions including: China, Greece, Italy, Mexico, Taiwan and Thailand.
